Cradled between the North Yorkshire Moors and the glorious North East coast, Grinkle Park is an elegant Victorian country house built in a baronial style, and set in 300 acres of peaceful parkland. The hotel has fine lounges with original features including high-embossed ceilings and elegant wooden wall panelling. Delegates can relax in front of roaring open fires and there's the imposing snooker room for after-dinner relaxation.

Each of our 20 en suite bedrooms has its own individual style and character, and many have views across the gardens and extensive grounds where guests can enjoy the lake, lawns and rhododendron display. Unwind at the end of the day with croquet, tennis or a leisurely walk. The Grinkle Estate, adjacent to the hotel, is well known for its rough shooting as well as plentiful partridge and pheasant.
